SPECTRUM-SONIC ASTRO-RARITIES
YOUR TEMPTER: ANDY DAVIS

RARE!

SPECTRUM/STEREOLAB:
"Soul Kiss (Glide Divine)"/"Tone Burst"/
"Tempter" (Silvertone OREP 56, p/s, unreleased split 7", 1995)

What must surely be regarded as the Holy Grail in terms of collecting both Spectrum and Stereolab alike is their 1995 split 7" which, according to some dealers, doesn't even exist.

The single was originally set for release on Silvertone in January that year to coincide with a 'double-header' concert starring both bands at the Garage in London, but was cancelled when Spectrum frontman, Sonic Boom, had to pull out of the gig because of a collapsed lung.

Just three test pressings existed at this stage (the only visible difference between these and the other copies is that they don't have a picture sleeve). Sonic kept one for himself, gave the second to Stereolab, and the third was passed onto someone who eventually sold it for £80. News of the sale apparently inspired Sonic into action. Returning to Silvertone, he ordered 25 more copies, and set about making an individually numbered, fold-over, colour-photocopied sleeve for each of them. The labels on each disc are all plain, but the original Silvertone catalogue number OREP 56 does appear in the run-off groove. (It's worth bearing in mind that this single can be confused with the commercial Spectrum 7", "Indian Summer", which has the similar catalogue number OREP 56.)

Of the 25 Sonic-commissioned copies, eight were kept by the bands and/or their managements, and 17 were sold through London Spacemen 3/Spectrum specialists Runcible Records — at instant collector's prices of between £80-£100 each. At the time, of course, this would have secured an exorbitant amount of money for a new 7" single, but with the value of items by Spacemen 3 and related bands constantly rising, as well as the huge collectability of Stereolab products, this original asking price turned out to be a positive steal.

Because of the tiny number of copies pressed, it's quite hard to put a value on this item, as copies hardly ever come up for sale. Two examples have changed hands for £600, but a more realistic price would be £500.

Almost as an afterthought, I should mention that the single contains three exclusive tracks: "Soul Kiss (Glide Divine)" by Spectrum (the title track mysteriously omitted from their album of the same name) on one side; and two Stereolab demos, "Tone Burst" and "Tempter", on the other. None of the tracks really stand out musically, but if you've paid around £500 for your copy of the single, you're hardly likely to risk playing it anyway!
